Portsdown Post

A pictorial update from Portsdown

Aebi being prepared for mowing manoeuvres. Welding and extracting sheared bolts. A little light engineering in the sun.

The Police search of the vegetation between Meadowsweet and Southwick Hill rd generated mountains of cut scrub and liberated industrial quantities of rubbish.

They may have missed

Something!

We used a shredder mounted on an excavator to blitz the scrub and picked up as much of the rubbish a we could there will be plenty left to do for months to come.

As the scrub was reduced it became obvious that a fence had to be fixed, if I can remember how to do it.

Irrespective of the turmoil that affects the human population wildlife is responding well to spring. Skylarks, yellowhammers, cowslips, and the characteristic silhouette of a peregrine are to be seen. Inside the fort comedy goats are bouncing around.
