What's been happening?

The cattle have done a great job in the Top Field leaving only their dung and short vegetation. They have now have moved on.

This ensures there will be ample dung collecting activity after lockdown.

The holding pen off Southwick Hill rd leading to compartment 6 has been cleared for the arrival of some horses. It was acting as a impromptu municipal tip judging by the amount of mattresses, seating, plastic bags full of who know what….

Back in business!

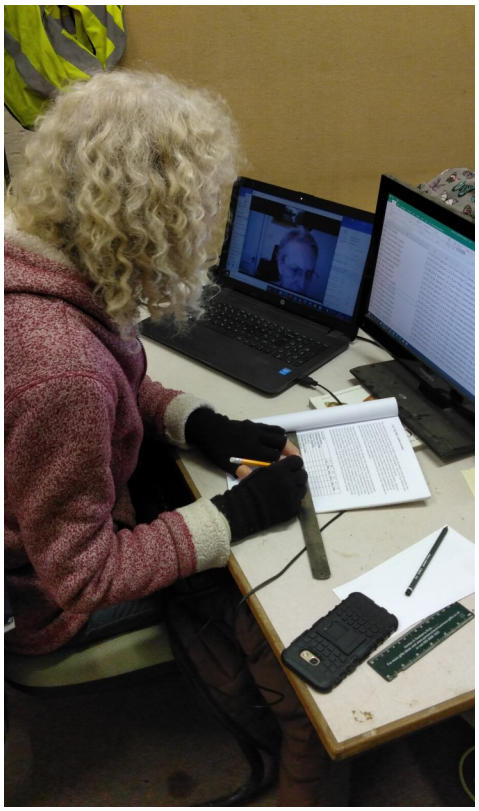

Notice the short manes of the furloughed, and thus unshod, equestrian centre horses. Enjoying the vegetation which benefits both the hill and the centre.

Lockdown's lack of volunteers means digging my own holes to replace fence posts.

The long road to nowhere. SSE's archaeologists reveal nothing of interest prior to the installation

In keeping with the era of Zoom Linda and Juliet proof read the 2014 insect survey data.

Taking advantage of the reduced traffic to clear roadside bramble to access the rubbish
